CABERNET SAUVIGNON

The Ant and the Cicada

One autumn day, the bustling ants were preparing their stores for the winter. They stopped to ask a cicada why he was playing music instead of planning for the season. "Life is to be enjoyed!" the cicada said. But when winter dawned, the ants were warm and well-fed. Seeing the starving cicada, they took pity on him and welcomed him to a feast. Life is about finding a healthy balance between work and play. We consider ourselves to be the ants in this story, always working ahead and planning for any possible difficult seasons ahead.

Winemaking

This wine is a strong representation of the growing vintage. Due to the heatwaves, we made a stylistic decision to pick everything earlier to retain acid and the Fableist signature freshness. This wine was fermented in tank and aged 100% in barrel. We utilized majority American oak, 10% of which were new oak barrels.

Tasting Notes

Vibrant black currant, cedar and vanilla hit your tongue, as you're warmed by the comforts of mint and eucalyptus. A strong finish wraps you in a fond embrace.
